Masonry dykes shall be not less than thirty inches in height, and earthen dykes not less than three feet in height. Storage-tanks of less than the foregoing capacities shall, where deemed necessary by an officer, on account of proximity to streams, character of topography, or nearness to buildings, be dyked or the entire storage premises provided with a curb, retaining-wall, or other suitable means to prevent the discharge of the liquids on to other properties in case of leakage from the tanks or piping. Dykes surrounding tanks containing crude oil shall be equal to the capacity of the tank or tanks surrounded, and these dykes shall have suitable copings or deflectors projecting inward, constructed so as to minimize the effect of boil-over. “(b) The location of a tank for the storage of any inflammable liquid with respect to any such other tank shall be such that the distance between shall be not less than three feet. For tanks above forty thousand gallons individual capacity storing any inflammable liquid except crude petroleum, the distance shall be not less than one-half the diameter of the tank: Provided, however, that where the tank adjoining is smaller, the diameter used shall be that of the smaller tank. The distance between tanks storing crude petroleum shall be equal to the diameter of the tank.

“(c) For the purpose of this regulation, inflammable liquids are divided into three classes, as follows:—

“Class I shall include those having flash-points at or below 20° F.

“Class II shall include those having flash-points above 20° F. but at or below 70° F.

“Class III shall include those having flash-points above 70° F.

“The location of tanks for the storage of inflammable liquids with respect to distances from the nearest line of adjoining property which may be built upon shall be such that the distance from any part of the tank and the line shall be not less than that set forth in the following table:—

Capacity of Tank (Gallons)	Class of Inflammable Liquid	Minimum Distance (Feet)
0 to 250	III	0
251 to 625	III	5
0 to 625	I and II	10
626 to 10,000	III	10
626 to 10,000	I and II	15
10,001 to 20,000	I, II, and III	15
20,001 to 25,000	I, II, and III	20
25,001 to 40,000	I, II, and III	25

“Tanks with capacities in excess of 40,000 gallons and all tanks for storage of crude petroleum shall be located in accordance with the following provisions:—

“Group A Tanks: Any all-steel, gas-tight tank constructed in compliance with these or equivalent standards and equipped either with (1) an approved permanently attached extinguishing system or (2) an approved floating roof, which is to be used only for the storage of refined petroleum products or other inflammable liquids not subject to boil-over, shall be so located that the distance from the line of adjoining property which may be built upon shall be not less than the greatest dimension of diameter or height of the tank, except that such distance need not exceed 120 feet.

“Group B Tanks: Any all-steel, gas-tight tank constructed in compliance with these or equivalent standards but not equipped either with (1) an approved permanently attached extinguishing system or (2) an approved floating roof, which is to be used only for the storage of refined petroleum products or other inflammable liquids not subject to boil-over, shall be so located that the distance from the line of adjoining property which may be built upon shall be not less than one and one-half times the greatest dimension of diameter or height of the tank, except that such distance need not exceed 175 feet.

“Group C Tanks: Any all-steel, gas-tight tank constructed in compliance with these or equivalent standards and equipped either with (1) an approved permanently attached extinguishing system or (2) an approved floating roof, which is to be used for the storage of crude petroleum, shall be so located that the distance from the line of adjoining property which may be built upon shall be not less than twice the greatest dimension of diameter or height of the tank, except that such distance shall be not less than 20 feet and need not exceed 175 feet.
